South Shore Cultural Center

Last Updated December 16, 2009

The South Shore Cultural Center (formerly the South Shore Country Club) is a cultural facility that has been recognized as a Chicago Landmark (2004) in addition to being on the list for the National Register for Historic Places (1975). Those who built this fabulous facility understood that entertaining can be a fine art.

The country club-like interior, grandiose ballrooms, cascading chandeliers, meeting rooms, and stunning art gallery make hosting here exceptional. Most of the facility has been recently updated and renovated to restore the Cultural Center back to its original décor.

Stage a small convention, honor employees, or throw the party of a lifetime!

Top this with a nine-hole golf course, a Nature Center, and views of the lake, and it's easy to see why this site is incomparable.
